“ Lizzy, my sweet friend. You just reached out to me last month, so I can't believe this is real. You were truly a special friend, always so kind and compassionate, spending time with you always brightened my day. I am so grateful for the time we had together at Knox and have so many fond memories to look back on. We had a lot in common (like our love of cats!) and you were so easy to talk to, your friendship meant so much to me. I am so glad that we kept in touch even after graduation, and I was always in admiration of the way you were pursuing your dreams. I am sad that you won't be able to visit me in Japan like we had always talked about, I know you would have loved it here. I know that wherever you are now shines a little brighter because of you. Thank you for sharing that light with me while you were here, I love you Lizzy. My deepest condolences to Anh and the whole family.

“ Lizzy, words cannot express how devastated I am, but I hope you are in peace now. I had just been thinking of you this past week. You were a great roommate but more importantly, you were my dear, dear friend. Hanging out with you was a blast, you were such a badass lady! Also, this goes without saying but I can't thank you enough for all the times you made sure I could get from Chicago to Galesburg after one of those long international flights from India. I regret that we won't make that trip to Turkey after all-- that would have been something to look forward to. My deepest condolences to the family. I love you, Lizzy. Peace be with you.

“ Lizzy was one of those students at Knox College who you could count on to be in a gentle and understanding demeanor in public no matter the day or occasion. I didn't know her all that well personally, but I spoke with her enough times to sense her energy. She seemed like someone who habitually put the feelings of others first. Seeing her and being around her was always improved my afternoon. She and my roommate were a great couple, both very studious and polite, and it seemed to me that they had begun to craft the kind of life together which Knox hopes to reinforce in the character of young people. Later they even married. We all suffer with mood declines occasionally, and as much as we hope to protect our loved ones we simply can't see these events coming - my heart goes out to Lizzy's family and to my roommate, Anh. I am certain there will be a gap in your life which will take some considerable months and perhaps even years to fill in. Anh, message me anytime. I am here for you to lend an ear whenever you would require it of me.

“ Lizzy was a kind, caring and compassionate friend. She always had a smile on and was willing to help right from our time in classes together. When she was in Birmingham for Thanksgiving, she made sure I had friends to spend the day with and that I was well fed! Your light will be missed dearly but will remain undimmed in our hearts forever.

“ Elizabeth

My baby sister.

We did not grow up under the same roof or even on the same continent but somehow you were always just a part of me. As I grew, so did you. When we met for the first time, I was an awkward tween and you a perfect beautiful blue eyed baby. When you were a little girl I wanted to protect you and teach you things. Suddenly you became a woman, one that I looked up to and who taught me so much instead. Your sweetness, your intellect and your integrity are all things I admired about you. I wish we had had more memories and more time together. I wish you had know that in this crazy world when I sometimes could feel like a misfit, you somehow made me feel like I belong. You were so kind and despite me living so far, you taught me what it was and how it felt to have a sister by your side.

Your last words to me were in a written exchange, checking in during these strange corona times. You said “ no matter what happens , you will always have a home here” .

I love you Elizabeth. I will miss you more than words can say. You will always have a home here in my heart and I believe that somehow, in some form we will meet again. “Out beyond ideas of now and then, there is a field. I'll meet you there “ Rumi

“ I never saw Lizzie because of covid. I only heard her voice as we talked of patients' real and possible diseases. When she came to her last day at the clinic, I commented that I did not receive a form for her evaluation to fill out, But I told her how outstanding she was; intelligent, detail oriented and above all she had great empathy for the patients. She was on her way to becoming a great clinician. I am very sorry that the family has to sustain this pain. We know it will lessn withtime and pleasant rememberances of Lizzie will somewhat push it aside but the pain will never completey go away.

“ Lizzy always has held a special place in my heart. She was a peaceful young lady and always was happy and bright. She was loving and caring. Heaven has been blessed with this angel. “Uncle Greg” has welcomed her with him and they are enjoying their heavenly rewards to the max. Lizzy brought joy to the world.
