“ I never really got the chance to know Alan that well. I remember when he was a little kid and he would be outside with his mom in the morning to get Aaron and Alison on the bus with the same smile he always had on his face. Then later on in life I seen him around town, but there was one time at the bowling alley my mom or my sister introduced me to him and he came up to me and smiled that big smile shook my hand and treated me like i was an old friend he hadn't seen in years. I could tell then he was a genuine, respectful, and caring young man.

“ Lil' Boudreau...I regret that we haven't hung out in quite awhile cause I've always enjoyed being around you. I remember skipping final hour and bringing you home before you had your liscense, I probably got you in a lot of trouble with your parents lol. All the late summer nights just sitting in pauls garage talking and just goofing around (I specifically remember flaming tennis balls being tossed back and forth haha). Many nights of sitting at shell til 3 in the morning because we had nothing else to do. You are a great guy with an awesome sense of humor, its an absolute shame you left us this early in life. Im gonna miss you man. We all are...

“ Oh where to begin. Any memory of Alan is sure to be a good one, & usually funny. Everything involving you was a good time. All the bus rides in grade school & high school. Each & every baseball game. Playing dodgeball in PE, & acting like retards in art class. Anytime we went camping was always a blast! Whether it was in the backyard or at the campground. I remember one time we went camping & you, Aaron, Katie, & Nate were swimming, but I was too scared to go in the water. So Nate offered to give me a piggy-back ride to the raft in the middle.haha. Then after awhile, you all jumped off & started swimming back & left me there!!! >.< You all laughed. I freaked out & jumped in & swam extra fast to shore. You asked if I was a female Michael Phelps.lol. Alan I'm going to miss our random talks about nothing. You always knew how to cheer me up. I'm going to miss that great smile & seeing you wave everytime I drove past the bowling alley. It just won't be the same. Life is so unfair & this will never seem real. You will always be my brother from another mother. :) I love you & miss you like crazy. Keep an eye out for all of us down here missing you. <3 you

“ I remember back in 8th grade, we were talking in our civics class about the trash problem and how the landfills were getting out of hand. We started discussing about possible solutions and Alan came up with the idea that we should build a giant catapult and fling all the trash into space. The whole class had a good laugh at that one.

“ I'll always remember Alan's laugh and smile. He could definitely cheer anyone up in a bad mood, and was just an overall caring and amazing soul. One night when I lived in my old apartment Alan and Paul were working on some project (imagine that) and I was sitting on my porch. I simply waved, and Alan took that as a conversation starter LOL and came on over and we talked about anything and everything. I'll never forget that! Alan came from a great family, and as a result, impacted so many people lives positively.

“ All of the summer nights we would spend at the bowling alley til 1am waiting for him to get off work, then after you would find us still at the bowling alley but in the parking lot til at least 4am. Or when you'd text me at like 2am just wanting someone to talk to because everyone else was asleep, all them nights you kept me up late. Or the days where we would have P.E together and walk the laps even though Montemayer told us simultaneously to run. Great times buddy. Wish I could've seen you one last time.
