“ Madonna and I were good friends back in high school and share a lot of good memories together. I will never forget the time we skipped beauty school together and watched the bus go by us when it was going back to the school and we hurried up and got our butts back to school to make it look like we went. She was a wild one but a good friend that would do anything for you. We just reconnected a few weeks ago after about 20 years or longer of not seeing or talking to each other but it was like we never lost touch. I will treasure that short time I had with her catching up. I wish we could of had more time together to talk about our memories and finish getting caught up with each other but God had other plans. Until we meet again my friend I will treasure the memories we have. RIP my dear friend. I know you will be an angel watching over me. I know you are up in Heaven with Carrie catching up and someday I will join you. Love you!
