“ I remember a man who could make any plant or flower he touched thrive. Two porches with western exposure come to mind , both filled with aquariums and greenery floor to ceiling. I often thought he missed his calling as an arborist. Also I remember the day he lost what he considered one of his best friends. He couldn't understand why someone so young with children had to die the way he did in a senseless accident. Maybe he has had a chance to find out now. Rest in peace brother.
