Paul and I became fast-friends in 7th grade, sharing a love of science and gizmos, and doing our best not to be too conformist. Since I learned of this, earlier today, I've recalled many of the good times we had. My deepest sympathies to those who know just how special he was.

I was always fond of Paul and remember him as an extremely nice and caring man. I had an emergency and went to the locksmith and was pleasantly surprised to discover Paul worked there and he really went out of his way to get me out of a jam. May the Lord send comfort to the loved ones of this sweet soul.

His name in the Obituary shocked me. My wife and I were in his Mac class of 1983. Rest in peace.
