“ He was always flustered and sweating profusely because he was withdrawing from alcohol poisoning.

“ I was sorry to see Phil's photograph in the obituary section of the paper as I flipped through it during coffee hour after church. I met him at Grace Baptist summer camp when I was about 16... he was going around giving out hugs to newcomers in a very jovial way. I accepted his offer which was a significant step for me since I previously had a hard time showing affection to people I knew, let alone strangers! His presence made the camp and school a more light hearted place and it sounds from the tributes like it was the same wherever he went. Lord have mercy and may his memory be eternal.

“ Being one of his regular customers, I didn't know him personally, but if he knew you, you were family. I had the great joy of asking him on a regular basis how he was doing, and to wish him a good day. I will definitely miss asking him how he is doing, and to have a nice day. But for one last time, I hope you have a great day Phil!!! May god take you under his loving arms, to paradise!!

“ I remember working on midnight shift and coming to hang out with Phil for an hour at a time while we were slow. I remember once a "regular" customer came in and wanted to purchase some items. I remember how you described what happened in your excited and at the same time frustrated voice how the customer threw down a dirty white sock full of coins on the counter, announced that the coins should cover it, and how he ran out of there. Of course the gross sock had only pennies in it! Wow were you mad! I'm sure it didn't help when other officers came to the scene, heard the story, and began to joke and laugh as we took the report. Sorry brother man...but don't worry, there are no dirty socks in Heaven! A one of a kind man who will be missed. God definitely needed you more than we do. Til we meet again God Speed Phil

“ Phil, I was so shocked to read this. You were my most favorite gas station employee. I loved coming in on the midnight shift just to see and joke around with you! Even on the worst day, you'd be able to cheer me up during my short transaction. Your absence will be deeply missed. Sending thoughts and prayers to your family. 💜

“ You were always a pleasure to talk to all the time when I would visit you at work. I miss going into the business and singing/talking in annoying voices to bother you all night long. I always remember you telling me to go to your brother's store instead to go bother him. Sad to hear the news today. You were one in a million Phil. God bless you.

“ As a cop who worked the midnight shift, I have to say that Phil was my favorite of all time! We all do business checks while patrolling and the one we really enjoyed was Lincolnshire (Circle K) when Phil was working. We probably spent a little too much time there, but that was because Phil was so much fun to be around! Phil was so proud of his Mom, brother and niece and he talked of them often. He was such a hard worker and took his job seriously. You're really going to be missed buddy!! You meant a lot to the 'ol KPD!!!
