“ I met Randy back in the roaring class of 1969. I always enjoyed being with him as we hung about at the Original Brown Onion or at my parents house when we were young. I remember how much he truly loved his most beautiful wife Joy. Being with them through the years was most redeeming and bright. Randy always had an unbelievable work ethic. From buying his first Porsche to buying his house. He had a great laugh and liked to laugh. I remember being up all night with him and his sidekick Tom Grupp at the TransAm car racing up in Wisconsin. His picture presented above shows how great he looked at 71. It is a shock to all who have known him and his family of his early passing. He would have certainly made a difference to his children Neil, Gina, and family. He was just about to unwind from all these years of work. May God's Grace shine upon Randy, Joy and his family.
