“ My condolences to my cousins for the loss of their father and to my Aunt and Uncle for their brother. I always viewed my Uncle Ray as the family tough guy who you could go to if you were in a bind. I often think he met Robert Conrad the tough guy actor while in the service and Robert made a living out of imitating Ray Dionne. We often were at his house as children roughhousing in the back bedrooms and my dad Roland would come back to settle us down. That lasted a few minutes and then Uncle Ray came back and we all ended up taking naps and no one complained. He had a strength about him but was there to listen and kid you let you know he understood what you were going through. He will be missed.
