“ So sorry for your loss, Kristin and family. Many prayers your way. -
Jessica Houde

Jessica Houde - May 26, 2020 at 08:51 AM

“ I do not know you but I took the time after doing my prayers this morning to read about the loss of your Mom on the FB page that led me here. What a beautiful heart and soul your sweet dear Mother was. I can tell by what you wrote. It truly is heartbreaking and so difficult to lose our mothers. Only prayers to the good Lord and time can heal your heart. Trust in Jesus that your Mother is in the most beautiful place and one day you will all be reunited. I will keep you, your dad and children in my prayers. Take good care of your dad he will need you now more than ever. God's blessings and peace to all of you.

“Kristen and Rick, I am so sorry to hear of Roz’s passing. Even though we had lost touch, I will always be so thankful and grateful that she was such a great caregiver to Adam when he was little. She was such a blessing to our family. May she rest in eternal peace.

“ Mommy I’m so lost without you. I still can’t believe I lost you. We both fought for so long against so many obstacles. You fought so bravely and always had a smile on your face and never complained. You were the most selfless person I’ve ever known. And the most amazing mother anyone could ever have. I am so happy you were able to be a part of Makayla & Lexi’s lives because I see you in them—they have your kind heart and humor. Your granddaughters will grow up remembering you and the fun they had! Daddy is lost without you. He took care of you for so long and he is heartbroken without you. I love you more than anything. I didn’t know something could hurt so much. I am still needing to try to put my thoughts into words to give you a proper eulogy and I cannot decide which photo shows just how amazing and beautiful you were. But these are a few of my favorites. I love you so much and I’m honored and blessed to be your only child and daughter.
