“ I got to know Susan some through a small group at church. What a wonderful person! My husband and I were fortunate to go to her home last fall and help her set up a new computer and visit. We didn't expect it, but she made a wonderful lunch for us. It was cabbage patch soup and it was wonderful. She said it was an old family recipe. We were also able to see pictures of her wonderful family that she loved dearly. She will be missed, but she is with the Lord now.##imported-begin##Beth Laehle##imported-end##

I always enjoyed her enthusiasm, her compassion, and her desire to learn. She will be missed.

“ I first met Susan last August when she volunteered to facilitate a housing leaders' training session. I found her to be professional, knowledgeable, and dedicated to the care of our students. We later worked closely on a few students' individual cases and I was extremely impressed with the rapport she had with each young man. She leaves a void at our College, both professionally and personally, that is already evident on our staff and with our students. May God bless her and those who mourn her loss. Mike Raters

“ Though I only knew Susan a short time, I have always admired her gift of making everyone feel comfortable around her. She was a pillar of strength for our/her students. Most of us at Wabash, though we saw her almost every day, had no idea she was sick. The campus is overwhelmingly sad to here of her passing. I am overwhelmingly sad and will miss seeing Susan's incredible smile. We send all of our heartfelt sympathy to her family and friends. Cathy

“ Susan & I met quite by chance a couple of years ago when we shared a table at the coffee shop at Wabash, thereafter meeting occasionally for lunch when her schedule permitted. She spoke so highly of her family and of her love for life and her work. Her steady strength in dealing with her health setbacks was an inspiration.

I count it a blessing to have known her and shall miss her and her radiant smile very much.##imported-begin##Ginny Maharry##imported-end##

“ To Susan's family,

I was very sad to read in the obituaries of Susan's passing. You all have my deepest sympathy. She was one of my favorite counselors. I worked at CSS many years as their receptionist. I worked with Susan with the Family Negotiation Center's clients for quite a few years. I always enjoyed working with her. She was always very professional and easy to work with. I am sure you will all miss her very much.

“ I've worked with Susan at Wabash for a number of years. The last two years in particular we worked together creating workshops for students that helped them deal more comfortably with difference. Susan initiated these workshops because she was concerned that majority students were not sensitive enough to the feelings of minorities. She had seen the effects on students she treated individually and wanted to do something to make the environment more accepting. I respected her greatly for stretching herself this way, and marvelled at the gentle way she treated people from many different backgrounds, making herself a model of tolerance and love. She will be greatly missed on our campus, and I personally will miss her as a colleague and friend.##imported-begin##Warren Rosenberg##imported-end##

“ Susan and I worked together for a number of years. She was a great help to the students she guided in difficult times; they knew they could trust her and depend on her. I was always happy when she was at a meeting. We would complain about the hour (neither of us liked getting up early), but mostly I could count on her to be so thoughtful about what was happening at the college. When I had personal or job-related stress, she always found a way to get me to talk and eased my mind. She was a warm and caring friend and an invaluable colleague. My husband and I met her wonderful family a few weeks ago; I know you were a comfort to her. Please accept my deepest sympathy for your great loss.##imported-begin##Julia Rosenberg##imported-end##

“ I met Susan at Butler while working on a class project. We connected and since graduation we've talked by phone, consulted, enjoyed conversation over lunch, made referrals, established a mutual trust and respect for the work we do and for one another.

I am shocked to learn of her death and strongly believe that she will be so missed by all who were touched by her compassionate and caring nature.

I extend my sympathy to the family and am saddened by your loss.##imported-begin##Pam Wright##imported-end##
