“ Scott, i was Zach's first and second grade teacher. I remember telling you at our first parent teacher conference about his amazing basketball skills.i was coaching 7th grade girls basketball at the time and I almost had him demonstrate what they couldn't understand. You in your very non pushy way said I don't want to push him into anything. I want him to pursue what he wants to. He worshipped you, Scott. You were the best dad a boy could have. I pray for peace for you and your loss. DeeDee Baker

“ Scott and family, we send our deepest sympathies in your loss. Although we didn't know Zach, we know that the combined genes of Susie and Scott had to produce a wonderful young man, and the comments from many who did know Zach well have confirmed that. It's often said that God works in mysterious ways, and we mortals are certainly unable to know why certain things happen as they do-- we can only trust that God had a very good reason for calling Zach to join his mother in heaven. Our thoughts and prayers are with you.

“ Sharing what my son, Karsten Aurella, wrote about his friend: It was a running joke how the name Zach Hollywood was the perfect name for a superstar. In a way, he already was one. Sitting here now I can feel the energy that he radiated. During basketball games the whole school seemed to feel it. When he would walk through the hallways I could tell people noticed and enjoyed his presence. He had such a clean vibe to him and was somebody I was always happy to see simply because of that positive energy. Everyone felt it and gravitated to it. I'm looking at my news feed and it seems everyone has a picture with him. He was friends with everyone and everyone was friends with him. On top of just being a good person, he had a grind and finesse on the court no one else had. Something that motivated me. I wish more people were like him. Even if you don't think people are watching, they are. Be someone like Zach. Someone always with a smile on their face, somebody who motivates others, somebody positive and good, a leader, somebody who people want to be like. Make the world a better place for him. Rest easy brother.

I came across this sad news and wanted to express deepest condolences with this remarkable family. Even though I did not have the privilege of knowing Zach, it is amazingly clear that he was a special young man with a kind and generous soul. I know that my words feel empty but I want you to know that I am thinking about you and Zach. I pray that God gives you a sign that He and Zach and Susie are close to you always.

“ I only had the honor of meeting Zach twice, but have known Susie and Scott most of my life. On both occasions I met him, it was so evident why they beamed with pride when talking about Zach. He was a polite, sweet, TALL young man. And he radiated the same love for his parents as they have for him. I have thought nonstop about Scott, Julie, Marc, and all of those whose lives he touched. I'm so profoundly sorry for what you all are going through now, and I will continue to keep you in my prayers. I wish I knew what else to do.

I did not know your son, but, I have two of my own. No patent can ever foresee this happening to them! I am so sorry for you! I don't know what lies beneath the tragedies of losing your wife and now your son. Nobody ever expects what you are enduring. My brother lost both of his sons at 21 due to overdosing. When my older nephew died, his brother never got over the loss. I will never say anybody is on a better place because none of us know anything about what really does happen. I do believe prayer
