“ It feels like a lifetime ago when he would show up at my dad's. He had just gotten home from his tour, and I was on the cusp of enlisting, he promised me he would help me get prepared. We would run for what felt like miles for me but a brisk walk for him. By run I mean I would complain and whine the whole time and he would smile and laugh at me and push for just a little further. Dispute my terrible attitude about exercise he showed up for me every night and always brought with him encouragement and smiles. We lost a gem of human who had compassion and love for everyone!
